Let the Admiral Rollmaster take the strain out of furling this summer

7 January 2011

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Calibra Marine International Ltd is delighted to announce the UK launch of the Admiral Rollmaster, a less strenuous alternative to traditional furling systems.

The Admiral Rollmaster provides excellent value for money whilst reducing the force required to roll the sail to only half of what is required with a standard manual system.

“The Admiral Rollmaster is a great option for anyone who wants to make winching easier but avoid the expense of installing electric winches. It’s combination of functionality and stylish design has created an innovative furling solution that will prove a welcome addition to any yacht this summer,” Calibra Marine Marketing Director, Trefor Jones, said.

Due to a one-third reduction in the size of the driving drum in the Admiral Rollmaster, the starboard-portside dimension of the furler is also decreased preventing interference of the anchor handle connected to the windlass and the driving drum.

This ensures that the foot of the sail can be lowered as much as possible providing a significant gain in the sail area at the foot of the sail to obtain the minimum heeling effect and increase the comfort for everybody on-board. Another feature is that the lower connecting sheets can be rotated and fixed at all positions of 300 angles.

Admiral furling systems have an excellent reputation for reliability and long, trouble-free service and come with a five-year parts guarantee. All equipment is manufactured from top grade hard-anodised aluminum alloy and stainless steel, with ultra-low-friction Toulon bearings. No maintenance is required, other than washing with freshwater.
